

A Feynman diagram showing a vertex where two fermion lines meet. The fermion lines are solid black lines with arrows pointing towards the vertex. One line enters from the bottom-left, and the other enters from the top-left. A dashed line, representing a photon, extends horizontally to the right from the vertex. To the right of the dashed line is an equals sign followed by the expression $-ig$.

$$= -ig.$$