

A Feynman diagram representing a three-point vertex. A central black dot is connected to three external lines. One line extends horizontally to the right, while the other two extend upwards and downwards to the left, forming a 'Y' shape. To the right of the vertex is an equals sign followed by the Greek letter lambda and a period.

$$= \lambda.$$